

Transpiration

the passive process of water movement through a plant and its evaporation from its leaves. It enables mass flow of mineral nutrients from the roots.

The small openings on the underside of leaves are called stomata